Consider the topic you are researching for your final project. In what ways might this topic be subject to misinformation, or misunderstanding by an audience who is not as familiar with it as you are?

Search for some examples of misinformation related to your topic, paying special attention to social media platforms -- we will be discussing the networked nature of misinformation in class on [INSERT DATE]. Come to class prepared with one or two examples of misinformation that you find, in the form of links or screen shots.

For example: if I am researching the impact of methane emissions from cattle feedlots on climate change, I might consider the claim that grass-fed cattle release less methane into the atmosphere and therefore have less of a negative environmental impact. I searched Instagram and found this post: